Course Description
Food is an inescapable component of every community. A national consumer movement to know where our food comes from and how it’s grown makes it more important than ever for rising professionals in community development to understand the complexities within local, regional, and global food systems. This class will explore theory and practice related to food and agriculture from a social science perspective and will prepare students to address the food needs of a community and respond to the current public discourse surrounding food and agriculture. The course approaches food systems from a social science perspective and encourages students to think about characteristics of community food systems and their impact on food security. The course includes a field component in which students will visit farms, direct marketing venues, food-based nonprofits and local agricultural businesses.

Course Objectives
Upon completion of this course, students will be able to
1. Evaluate and assess claims made about food issues and food systems
2. Participate in public discourse regarding food systems in an informed way
3. Analyze the root causes of food insecurity in communities
4. Make decisions about how resources are used to address food needs

Course Text
All required readings will be available on the course Canvas site.

Communication Policy
- Please contact me via email through Canvas or UF Email using your UF email account only. UF policies prohibit me from discussing your grade through any other email server. If you contact me using a non-UF email account I will respond requesting you send me an email using your UF account prior to answering your question.
- I try to respond to all emails within 24 hours or by the end of the next business day. Feel free to email me again if you have not heard back from me after 24 hours –sometimes emails are misplaced in a junk email folder or can be overlooked. You are welcome to stop by my office or call if you need to reach me sooner.
• Walk-in friendly office hours are posted at the top of this syllabus. Appointments may not be scheduled during walk-in friendly office hours. Additional appointment times are available at the website below. Although walk-ins are welcome at other times as well, the best thing to do is schedule a time for us to meet if you would like to meet in person. This ensures you don’t waste a trip and I’m available when you stop by. You can schedule an appointment to meet with me using this link: https://meetwithdrmoore.acuityscheduling.com

- D = 63.50-66.49%
- D- = 60.00-63.49%
- E = 59.99% and below

All of the following must be true for the student to be eligible to receive a grade of "I."
1) The student has completed a major portion of the course work with a passing grade (D or better),
2) the student is unable to complete course requirements because of documented circumstances beyond their control, and
3) the student and instructor have discussed the situation prior to the final exam (except under emergency conditions).

Participation (40%)
Participation is a key component of this course. We will visit several field sites that are critical to our classroom discussions. This grade will be based on both attendance to class and field visits as well as the overall quality of your participation and engagement. You are expected to actively participate in all field visits and productively contribute to classroom discussions and activities. Active participation means you arrive to class well-prepared, engage with your peers and guest speakers, and respectfully listen to others. Headphones should be put away during class and laptops should only be used for class purposes. Students distracted by their phones or working on other tasks on laptops will lose participation points for that class period. Students repeatedly off task will be asked to leave so they do not distract other students from learning.

Field Homework (10%)
You will be asked to go into the community and explore different aspects of the community food system as homework throughout the semester.

Reflection Journal (25%)
You will keep a journal throughout the duration of the course. The journal is an opportunity for you to take field notes and reflect on class content. Some of the journal entries will have writing prompts while others will ask you to reflect generally on discussions or field experiences.
Journals will be collected at the end of the semester. Note: You are still expected to complete journal entries for days you are absent.

Community Food Security Assessment (25%)
The class will complete this assignment collectively. Students will be divided into working groups that will focus on a particular aspect of community food security. Each working group will be responsible for assessing an aspect of community food security over the course of the semester and presenting their findings to the class both orally and in report form. Collectively, all working group assessments will be combined to produce a community food security assessment of a particular geographic region in Gainesville.

Attendance Policy
Requirements for class attendance and make-up exams, assignments, and other work in this course are consistent with university policies that can be found at: https://catalog.ufl.edu/ugrad/current/regulations/info/attendance.aspx.

First Class Attendance Policy
According to the UF undergraduate catalog: “If you do not attend at least one of the first two class meetings of a course or laboratory in which you are registered, and you have not contacted the department to indicate your intent, you can be dropped from the course. You must not assume that you will be dropped, however, if you fail to attend the first few days of class. By posting a notice in the department office, the department will notify you if you have been dropped from the course or laboratory. You can request reinstatement on a space-available basis if you present documented evidence."

This policy will be in effect for FYC 3521 for the first day of class only since the drop/add period ends before the second class meeting time.

Policy Regarding Late Work & Canvas App
- All assignments are due on Canvas by 5PM on the date indicated on the course calendar unless otherwise noted.
- There is a 7-hour grace period (until 11:59PM on the due date) for online submissions. Late points will not be deducted during this time.
  - A grace period is intended to accommodate for any technical difficulties while trying to submit your assignment. If you wait until close to 11:59PM before attempting to submit your assignment for the first time and experience technical difficulties you will not be granted additional time as a result. My advice is to attempt to submit by the scheduled due date (5PM) and use the grace period to resolve technical issues that may arise, if any. Do not wait until 11:59PM to try and submit for the first time as work will not be accepted late (after 11:59PM) if something goes wrong.
- Assignments will not be accepted after the grace period ends without written instructor approval at least 24 hours prior to the scheduled due date (i.e. approval must be obtained via email by 5pm the day before an assignment is due).
- Assignments due in class will not be accepted late. These assignments must be turned in at the start of class to receive credit. There is no grace period for work due during class.

*Caution: The Canvas app is a great tool for Canvas mail, announcements, and viewing your grades. It is not a great tool for submitting assignments. The uploading procedure is not reliable and your assignment may not upload properly, or at all. In addition to this, I am unable to see that you attempted to submit something using the app (I can view your activity when you access Canvas through an Internet browser). Therefore, do not submit assignments via the Canvas app. I will not accept your assignment should technical issues arise as a result of using the Canvas app to submit your work and the issue is not discovered until after the grace period ends.

APA Formatting Guidelines

Use the APA Style Guide, 6th Edition to complete all assignments in this course. Use proper APA formatting for all components of an assignment including in-text citations, tables and figures, appendices, section headings, title, abstract and references. Guidelines for formatting can be found in:

Note: There are many citation generators and APA guides available online. While these can be good resources, they often produce citations that are incomplete or incorrectly formatted. I strongly encourage you not to use a citation generator for your work. If you do use one it would be very wise to review the references to ensure they are formatted correctly before submitting your assignment. The only source that ensures 100% compliance with APA is the APA Style Guide itself.

Classroom Policies

- Make sure that your phone is turned to vibrate during class.
- Stay on task.
- Respect your fellow classmates and instructor.
- Come to class on time and prepared to participate.
- All students who are late on exam days (come into class once the first person has left) will not be able to take the exam and may only schedule a make-up at the instructor’s discretion.

Students with Disabilities

Students with disabilities requesting accommodations should first register with the Disability Resource Center (352-392-8565, www.dso.ufl.edu/drc) by providing appropriate documentation. Once registered, students will receive an accommodation letter, which must be presented to the instructor when requesting accommodation. Students with disabilities should follow this procedure as early as possible in the semester.

Policy Regarding Testing Accommodations

- Any student who requires testing accommodations must follow university procedure for securing the accommodations. Please see https://www.dso.ufl.edu/drc/students for how to access resources and setting up accommodations.
- Students who require testing accommodations should follow DRC policy for making an appointment to take the test(s) at the DRC. Do not assume that I can provide additional assistance for testing needs. If you fail to follow through on making arrangements with the DRC to take a test, you will take the test with the rest of the class and will be given the same amount of time to take the test as the rest of the class.

Academic Honesty

UF students are bound by The Honor Pledge, which states, “We, the members of the University of Florida community, pledge to hold ourselves and our peers to the highest standards of honor and integrity by abiding by the Honor Code.” On all work submitted for credit by students at the University of Florida, the following pledge is either required or implied: “On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment.” The Honor Code (http://www.dso.ufl.edu/sscr/process/student-conduct-honorcode/) specifies a number of behaviors that are in violation of this code and the possible sanctions. Furthermore, you are obligated to report any condition that facilitates academic misconduct to appropriate personnel. If you have any questions or concerns, please consult with the instructor in this class.

Campus Helping Resources

Students experiencing crises or personal problems that interfere with their general well-being are encouraged to utilize the university’s resources. The following resources are available at no cost for currently enrolled students. Resources are available on campus for students having personal problems or lacking clear career or academic goals, which interfere with their academic performance.

Health and Wellness Resources

Online Course Evaluation Process

Students are expected to provide feedback on the quality of instruction in this course by completing online evaluations at https://evaluations.ufl.edu. Evaluations are typically open during the last two or three weeks of the semester, but students will be given specific times when they are open. Summary results of these assessments are available to students at https://evaluations.ufl.edu/results/.

My Pledge to Students

I love teaching. As a student in one of my courses there are a few things you should expect. First, I’m going to challenge you because I want you to experience growth – personal, academic and professional growth. Secondly, I want to create an enjoyable (yet, challenging) learning experience for you. My hope is you will like coming to class and discussing course materials with your peers and that you will find interest in topics you didn’t realize interested you. Along the way I also want to provide ample opportunity for you to explore someone else’s perspective – to critically evaluate the social world around you and understand it through someone else’s eyes. I consider this is one of the most important aspects of higher education and think it’s crucial we practice interacting with and understanding people who are not like us, because we will continue to be challenged by opposing perspectives our entire lives. In addition, I hope you leave my courses as a better consumer of science so that you are prepared to constructively participate in public discourse surrounding social issues. You are the future liaisons between social science and society – you need to be able to interpret how research impacts the everyday lives of citizens so that one day you can have the greatest impact possible in the world.

And finally, you should expect me to be fair, transparent and honest with you. I will always explain my reasoning for the decisions I make that affect students and I am open to conversations when those decisions seem unfair. My grading process is transparent and the assessment criteria are clearly explained – I never want you to struggle because you don’t understand what I’m asking you to do. Perhaps most importantly, I’ll tell you when I don’t know something and help you find the answer – in fact, I hope you ask questions I can’t answer so we can learn together! I strive to create a learning environment that fosters success, which in my opinion means you are comfortable participating in class, excited about the material and recognize its relevance in your life and you’re confident you understand what is expected of you. Creating this type of environment is a two-way street; it also requires effort on your part to come to class prepared and ask questions if things are unclear. Together I know we can make this course a great learning experience. I welcome any feedback that contributes to this goal – my door is always open.
